

SHORT BIO

Isadora Reimão was born in Piraju, a São Paulo's small city, in 1984.

She was raised between the fine arts, with great incentive from her parents to follow artistic career. Her dad, an artist too, provided her all resources for her to develop skills on drawing and sculpture.

One of her biggest works was on a samba school, developing costumes, giant sculptures and puppets.

Later, she found a new passion: the masks. She has produced a lot, some of them specially developed for theatre plays.

She worked as art director on the short movie "Rubras Mariposas" ("Ruby Moths", 2013).

In 2014, she illustrated the animations for the movie "As Viagens de Jerê", directed by Thiago Ming.

The watercolor has always been present on Isadora's work, as basis to projects and as final product of her expression.
